The Corky McMillin Center and ULI San Diego/Tijuana Chapter Present:

Cross-Border Economics
A Catalyst for Growth in San Diego

Join Jerry Sanders at SDSU on April 30th when he will lead a panel discussion on cross-border economics. Enrique Esparza Jr. of Co-Production International and Tijuana Economic Development Corporation, DEITAC; Christina Luhn of San Diego Economic Development Corporation Cali Baja Bi-National Mega Region; and Stephen Williams of SENTRE Partners, Inc. will speak on the panel as well. The discussion will focus on the potential for economic growth between the U.S.-Mexico border. Mexico is projected to be one of the world’s five largest economies by 2050 according to the U.S. Secretary of Commerce. The projected growth is anticipated to propel the North American market. With the catalyst for growth...
just next door, it is vital for San Diego to explore avenues to further economic development between San Diego and Tijuana.

The Corky McMillin Center for Real Estate and Cassidy Turley Co-host State of Real Estate Event

February 25, 2014, The Corky McMillin Center for Real Estate and Cassidy Turley co-hosted the State of Real Estate Forecast event at the San Diego Central Library. Event organizers recruited an all-star guest speaker lineup including, New York Times best-selling author, Dave Logan; retail pioneer and Founder of PIRCH, Jim Stuart; and Chief Economist of Cassidy Turley, Kevin Thorpe. Although anchored by the trends and economics driving commercial real estate, speaker presentations also paid tribute to behavioral science and flagged it as a critical variable in emerging trends in the market today. Memorable event moments include, Logan’s synopsis of the five tribal stages, Stuart’s profile of consumers today, and of course Thorpe’s breakdown of the numbers for the 2014 commercial real estate forecast. Over 200 hundred guests turned out for the event.

Tim Wright of HFF and Rick Reeder of Cassidy Turley Speak on NAIOP Capital Markets Panel

Tim Wright and Rick Reeder participated in the NAIOP Capital Markets Panel on March 4th in Del Mar. The panel addressed the state of the market and the nature of future opportunities. The panel also discussed the needs of tenants as it translates into demand for space. Rick Reeder believes that the commercial real estate community needs to think differently going forward and that the market is at the “start of real value increases.” Tim Wright agreed and stated that more investors are looking at the San Diego market and that: “the recovery of San Diego is slow relative to the Northwest and Bay Area, but we’re seeing more acquisition financing here, and it is just beginning.”

Scott McClave, The Bascom Group LLC

San Diego Transitions From Freeway Infrastructure to Traffic Management

Caltrans will focus more on strategic management of traffic rather than expanding the amount of freeway lanes in the near future. This should provide commuters with more choices and more information which should lead to better real-time traffic data. However, there are currently several lane additions on the list for 2014 such as the $100 million construction of a four-lane expressway on State Route 76 which is due to be completed by winter of 2017. Caltrans is also working on the Cabrillo Bridge-Laurel Street overpass and the Centerline Bus Rapid Transit States on Interstate 15. One of the most expensive projects (the continued construction of express lanes next to Route 76 on the 805) is expected to be completed by next winter.

Cash Still Taking Homes Below $400,000

Buyers and/or investors paying cash for homes still makes up almost 27% of the purchases for homes under $400,000. Cash buyers make it difficult for first time homebuyers to compete due to a seller’s preference for cash over a financing contingency.

Large Project Near Petco Park Springs Back to Life

After almost a decade, an amended Ballpark Village plan is making a comeback. The plan is for the 3.5 acre parcel between Petco Park and the San Diego Trolley line. The plan, approved on February 26th, will include a 37 story, $250 million tower which will consist of 688 residential units. However, it has not yet been determined whether the units will be all multifamily rentals or contain a portion of for sale condominiums. In addition, there will be approximately 55,357 square feet of retail.

The property is being developed by JMI in partnership with Lennar Corp.

Funding for 2nd Phase of the San Ysidro Port of Entry Project Is in Obama's Proposed Budget

Funding for critical improvements to the San Ysidro Port were included in President Obama's proposed budget. These improvements will create jobs and increase the speed at which commerce flows at the border. The total estimated cost for the project is $732 million. Phase one should be completed in September of this year and includes the pedestrian bridge, relocation of operations facilities, as well as the construction of temporary utilities. The second and third phases will add 10 northbound lanes to the border crossing bringing the total inspection stations to 62. In addition, the southbound lanes of Interstate 5 will be moved to the west in order to connect to new roadways on the Tijuana side. The San Ysidro border crossing handles approximately 50,000 vehicles and 25,000 pedestrians daily, making it one of the busiest land ports in the world.

Freddie and Fannie – Multifamily Will Remain Strong in 2014

Freddie and Fannie believe that multifamily will remain an attractive investment in 2014. Many major markets are showing vacancy rates that are lower than historical norms with the exception of Washington D.C. and Norfolk, VA. However, rents in certain areas are beginning to moderate and some markets may be at or beyond their peak. According to a Fannie Mae spokesperson, continued demand for multifamily in 2014 is based on a few key factors: improving job growth, increasing renter base, new apartment supply and rising home prices.
